

JHS Mission Statement

The Jewish Historical Society of Fairfield County (JHS) preserves, promotes and perpetuates Jewish history and heritage for ourselves and future generations. JHS is our communities' resource for discovering, educating and enjoying the Jewish heritage and history of our region and elsewhere.

Our Jewish heritage is strengthened through visionary leadership, as demonstrated by Irwin and Vivian Miller and Norma z'l and Milton Mann, to create a rich legacy that is a gift for the future.

JHS also looks forward to sharing its revitalized mission of future community service, engagement and education for the betterment of our communities.

Celebrating Thirty Years of Legacy & Leadership with the
Lifetime Achievement Award &
2015 JHS Heritage Award

Vivian & Irwin Miller

Under the leadership of Irwin Miller, the founder and first president of the Jewish Historical Society and his wife Vivian, the JHSFC Archives, the only Jewish Archives in Fairfield County, have grown to include the archival records from communities throughout Fairfield County. We honor their tireless efforts to leave a legacy which enables future generations to study the story of our Jewish communities, their evolution, their people, their successes and their important contributions.

The Jewish Historical Society of Fairfield County honors the lives of Milton and his late wife Norma for their leadership and tireless efforts throughout the community. Working with organizations ranging from affordable housing in Stamford to the United Jewish Federation, their devotion to causes benefitted many people at home and abroad. Gracious role models and innovators, both individually and as a couple, they improved the welfare of the Jewish people and the greater community. Their legacy endures through the quality of their achievements.
