Dear Board of Representatives,

I am writing as a longtime resident of Stamford with 2 children in the Stamford public schools. I am a teacher in a neighboring district and believe input from the community is essential in transparency and accountability. My understanding is that new rules for public comment limiting speech have been proposed. You should absolutely refuse to implement these rules restricting comments from the community. To suggest that community members, including students and parents, whose lives are directly impacted by decisions made by the BOE, should not be allowed to speak more than once on an issue, limits their ability to provide consequential feedback to those decisions.

Please do not limit public comment in Stamford.

Best regards,
Jennifer Ladd
